

Welcome to a No Worries home.
You're great at this. Now everyone can relax.

Your agency recommends No Worries because they trust you. Here's everything you need to know, in one minute.

It only listens for sounds

A spare phone sits in a shared room. There's no video and no camera. Parents get an alert when it hears one of these:

Crying that goes on
About half a minute or more, not every whimper.

Raised voices
Yes, the kids' shouting counts too. Parents know that.

Loud noises
A crash, a bang, something falling.

A very long quiet
Hours without a sound from the room.

An alert means "worth a look", not "something went wrong". Babies cry and toddlers drop things. Parents know that too.

Your happy moments count too

Every day, parents see a summary of the moments that show their kids are thriving with you.

Singing · Reading · Music · Mealtimes · Laughter

What stays private

- Sound only. Nobody sees you.
- It lives in shared rooms like the playroom or living room, never in the bathroom.
- Audio stays encrypted in the family's account for 30 days. Your agency never hears it.

Full details at no-worries.com/privacy

Your certificate of trust

Your calm days and happy moments with a family become a record of great work you can show at your next interview. It's yours, and you choose who sees it.

Questions? We're here for you too.
Ask your agency, the family, or write to us at support@no-worries.com.

Recording laws vary by state, and some require everyone recorded to agree. This guide isn't legal advice. No Worries isn't a medical device. Images are illustrative.

no worries